

Food Service Bulletin Buzz, Prime Minister Trudeau and his Cabinet Ministers at Laurentian University

Even the nonpartisan would agree, feeding our Prime Minister and his Cabinet during their retreat on campus is an experience worth sharing. Here is a synopsis on Canada's main man, his cabinet ministers and Chartwells menus.

Chartwells associates at Laurentian University executed flawless food service for our Prime Minister and his team during their stay in residence. Alex Freedman, Chief of Staff at Laurentian University communicated to us how, "his staff says he really enjoyed the food. I heard from many ministers, their staff, and the RCMP who were all impressed. Congratulations." Trudeau and his ministers had catered closed door meetings and frequented a variety of our food service outlets on campus including our Café Bistro. In my attempt to be on par with Canadian politics, I had to know what our Prime Minister had for breakfast from Café Bistro. The result, he fueled his day with a hearty helping of home fries, bacon, toast and two eggs over easy.

Our prime minister heading to his cabinet meetings after he nourished his hungry mind with a Chartwells breakfast from Café Bistro.

According to Laurentian University President, Dominic Giroux "this retreat will have a substantial positive impact for our university community and Greater Sudbury for years to come. The first post-secondary institution to hold the federal cabinet, deputy ministers, ministers' chiefs of staff, the Canadian Ambassador to the US, staff from PMO and PCO." Definitely, an exciting endeavour and memorable experience for us to facilitate food services for the Canadian federal government.

Laurentian University President, Dominic Giroux greets Prime Minister Trudeau outside our Marché Alphonse food service outlet.