International Orientation

Winter 2026

Land Acknowledgement

As we start our orientation session at Canadore College, we want to take a moment to acknowledge the land we're on. We do this to show respect and gratitude for the Indigenous people who have lived here for many generations.

Canadore College is located on the traditional territory of the Anishinaabeg people, within lands protected by the Robinson Huron Treaty of 1850. This land has been home to the Nipissing First Nation since time immemorial.

We want to recognize the importance of the land we call home. This is part of our commitment to building better relationships and understanding between nations, and to learning more about the local Indigenous peoples and their cultures. Across Canada, we acknowledge the land of the Inuit, Métis, and First Nations people.

Traditional Drumming

For Canadian Indigenous Peoples, the drum is not simply a musical instrument. The drum is representative of Mother Earth's heartbeat.

It is used for ceremonial purposes as well as for social settings. Many Indigenous nations and communities across Canada have their own drum. There are numerous variations of the drum, including the "grandfather" drum, the hand drum, and the water drum.

The most common place you would find the drum is at a Pow Wow. Pow Wows are gatherings and celebrations where drumming, singing and dancing take place and are generally open for everyone to attend.

For many Indigenous nations, drumming and singing is a form of prayer. We will often have a song to open up a ceremony, gathering or event in a positive way. Some of the songs consist of chanting, with some containing words in our Indigenous languages. There are social songs, and others that are for more specific ceremonial purposes

Common Practices and Expectations

Understanding the common practices and expectations in classrooms and workplaces is important.

These include how people communicate, collaborate and show respect for others.

- Be on time for class or work.
- Respect other people's personal space and boundaries.
- Be Respectful of others' input and opinions even when you may not agree.
- Communicate politely and clearly.
- Be open to learning and following the specific policies and procedures of your workplace/classroom.
- Maintain good personal hygiene.

Being aware of these shared practices helps students feel comfortable, build positive relationships, and thrive while living and learning here.

Racism in Canada

Canada is a welcoming and diverse country, but you may still face discrimination or racism. If this happens:

- You are not alone. We are here to help and support you.
- You have rights. Everyone deserves to be treated with respect and fairness.
- We can help. Please report any concerns to the International Department. We will work to ensure you feel safe and supported.

We encourage you to participate in activities, meet new people, and share your culture. This helps build understanding and friendships.

For more information about your rights, please scan this QR code:

Important: Budgeting Basics

What is Budgeting?

Budgeting is planning how to spend and save your money to cover your needs and avoid financial stress.

Prioritize Your Needs and Wants

Needs: Tuition, housing, food, transportation, clothing, school supplies, childcare, medicine, etc.

Wants: Eating out, entertainment, gadgets, extra clothing, leisure travel, optional subscriptions, gifts, etc.

Payment plans and/or instalments are NOT available.

Accepting an offer means you have the funds to cover all required costs for the length of your studies.

The Social Insurance Number (SIN) is a nine-digit number that is required to work in Canada.

> Are you new to Canada and need a SIN?

1. Apply for your SIN online at sin-nas.canada.ca.
2. You will receive an email confirming your application with a SIN Application Number (SAN).
3. Within 5 business days you will receive a second email confirming that your application has been processed.
4. Go to My Service Canada Account (MSCA) to register for an account. You will need your SAN and your unique client identifier, from Immigration, Refugees and Citizenship Canada.
 - a. Follow the verification steps to create your profile; and
 - b. Secure your account by registering for multi-factor authentication.

Once you have successfully created your MSCA, you can view your SIN in the secure portal.

Service
Canada

What do I need to apply?

To apply for a SIN, you must provide identity documents:

1. An original valid primary identity document that proves your identity and your legal status in Canada, such as:

A Permanent Resident Card or a Confirmation of Permanent Residence, issued by Immigration, Refugees and Citizenship Canada (IRCC); or

A work permit; or a study permit, which indicates the permit holder "may accept employment" or "may work" in Canada, issued by IRCC; or a visitor record showing that you are authorized to work in Canada, issued by IRCC; or

A diplomatic identity card and a work authorization, issued by the Department of Foreign Affairs, Trade and Development.

2. An original valid secondary document to confirm your identity, such as a passport or a provincial or territorial identification issued by a Canadian Government (federal, provincial, or territorial). Examples:

A passport, (Canadian or foreign)

A single journey travel document

A provincial or territorial health card or driver's license

Immigration Advising

Protecting your SIN

Your SIN is confidential. Do not use it as identification or provide it for job applications, rental applications, etc.

In the wrong hands, your SIN could lead to:

- an invasion of privacy
- identity theft
- loss of government benefits, tax refunds or bank credits

If someone uses your SIN to commit fraud, it could ruin your credit rating. Someone could also use your SIN to work illegally. In this case, the Canada Revenue Agency (CRA) may expect you to pay tax on income you did not receive.

When to provide your SIN

Your SIN is confidential. The most common uses of your SIN is:

when you are hired for a job and begin working

- Employers must collect your SIN to report your income to the government for tax and social benefits purposes

when dealing with the government for certain transactions

- You need to provide your SIN to:
 - file your taxes
 - access programs and benefits like employment insurance, student loans and grants, and public pensions

when you open an account that earns interest income at a bank or other financial institution

- Financial institutions must collect your SIN to report your income (such as interest and dividends) to the government for tax purposes

For the lists of federal programs that are permitted to collect and disclose the SIN consult The Social Insurance Number Code of Practice (<https://www.canada.ca/en/employment-social-development/services/sin/reports/code-of-practice.html#h2.1>)

When not to provide your SIN

Some businesses may ask for your SIN. This is strongly discouraged, but not illegal.

For example, you do not have to provide your SIN:

when you apply for a job

- Employers don't need your SIN until they hire you for the job and you begin working and earning income

when dealing with non-government entities for most transactions

- You don't need to provide your SIN to:
 - rent a property, fill out a rental application, or negotiate a lease
 - sign up for telecommunication services (like phone, internet, or cable services); an exception is Hydro Quebec, which must collect the SIN by provincial law
 - rent a car
 - complete a medical history questionnaire
 - write a last will and testament
 - apply for post-secondary education

when you perform general banking transactions and for financial transactions that don't earn you interest income

- You don't need to provide your SIN to:
 - apply for a credit card
 - apply for or renew a mortgage
 - apply for a loan or line of credit
 - cash a cheque

when you request a credit report

- You don't need to provide your SIN to get a credit report
- Offer to provide other documents instead of your SIN for identification purposes or for credit purposes

What to do if someone asks for your SIN when it's not required

If someone asks for your SIN, ask questions. Ask why they need it, ask how they will use it, and ask who else will receive it. Explain that your SIN is not required by law and that you do not want to provide it. Offer to use a different proof of identity.
