Evaluation Methods: Formative and Summative

All competencies are evaluated throughout the term. Methods of evaluation include the following:

1. Activités (activities always include conversations about varied topics between the students and collective discussions involving the teacher).
2. Projets (team projects always include conversation between students and discussions involving the teachers and every group of students).
3. Présentation orale (oral presentation about a relevant topic)

Communication to Students and Parents:

The most effective way to contact the teacher is to write a note in the student's agenda (or attach a note to it). The teacher will always sign the note to signify he read it (a complete answer may follow). The teacher will use the same method of communication with parents. In case of need, communications to all parents will be written in French and English for your convenience.

Parents may also use the teacher's institutional email: ocote2@emsb.qc.ca

- Please note that parents may communicate with the teacher in English.
- Veuillez noter que les parents peuvent communiquer avec le professeur en français.
- Tome nota de que los padres pueden comunicarse en español con el docente.

Materials/Routines/Other:

The material used in class include:

- Cargo (an exercise book)
- A binder with paper sheets
- A bilingual dictionary (published after 2010)

Late work policy:

Assignments are penalized at 10% per day. After 4 days, the student's maximum obtainable grade will be 60%, and after 5 days, the assignment will not be accepted by the teacher and will be considered as failed. Week-end days and holidays count.

The teacher will not contact students if they are absent in class or during an evaluation. He should be contacted diligently by the student or their parents/caretakers.

In case of special situations, the school's rules and norms will always apply, even though the teacher retains discretion over the late work policy's application in individual situations.
