UNIVERSITY LEADERSHIP

Marc B. Hahn, DO, FAOCA

KCU President and CEO

Dr. Marc B. Hahn became the 14th president and chief executive officer of Kansas City University (KCU) in 2013, after briefly serving as KCU's executive vice president for academic and medical affairs, provost and dean. KCU is home to the largest medical school in the Midwest and the sixth-largest medical school in the nation. The University is a key educator of physicians, health professionals and scientists for both Missouri and Kansas and identified as the 9th most impactful medical school in the United States for primary care. Dr. Hahn has built a team that is responsible for the expansion of KCU on two campuses strategically located in Kansas City and Joplin, Missouri, to address the growing needs of both urban and rural underserved populations with two medical school sites, a growing graduate school and a new dental school.

He came to KCU from the University of New England where he served as senior vice president for health affairs and dean of the College of Osteopathic Medicine from 2009-2012. Previously, Dr. Hahn served as senior vice president for health affairs and dean at the University of North Texas Health Science Center from 2001-2009. He also served from 1995-2001 as the chief of the Pain Medicine and Palliative Care Division and professor of anesthesiology at the Pennsylvania State University College of Medicine. During that time (1998-99), he was a Robert Wood Johnson Health Policy Fellow (RWJHPF), and in that capacity, served as a health policy advisor to the US Senate Committee on Finance. In 2022, the RWJHPF program recognized Dr. Hahn with their Lifetime Achievement Award.

His career in anesthesiology began at the Walter Reed Army Medical Center in Washington, D.C., where he served as chief of pain management services and as a faculty member for the Uniformed Services University. While in the military, Dr. Hahn served as anesthesiologist for Presidents Ronald Reagan and George H.W. Bush. A graduate of Syracuse University with a bachelor of science degree in biology, Dr. Hahn earned a doctor of osteopathic medicine degree from Des Moines University. He completed residency training at Walter Reed and fellowship training at both the National Institutes of Health and Georgetown University. He is board-certified in both anesthesiology and pain medicine.

Throughout the years, Dr. Hahn has held leadership positions on numerous committees for various commissions, agencies and organizations, including president of the American Academy of Pain Medicine, chair of the Board of Deans for the American Association of Colleges of Osteopathic Medicine and co-chair for the Blue-Ribbon Commission for the Advancement of Osteopathic Medical Education. Special appointments include: site inspector for medical school accreditation; appointment to a key Medicaid Advisory Panel by the Governor of Texas, and member of the National Academy of Medicine's Planning Committee for Graduate Medical Education. Dr. Hahn has recently served as a member or board director for the Civic Council of Greater Kansas City, the Kansas City Area Development Council, Greater Kansas City Chamber of Commerce and MRI Global.
