

Dr. Daniel Fortino

As a young clinician, I am motivated to serve on the RCDSO Council to bring a fresh perspective that emphasizes the evolving landscape of patient care and regulatory oversight. My clinical experience has provided me with a practical understanding of the challenges and opportunities within dental practice, which I believe can contribute meaningfully to the council's work.

My commitment to public protection is central to my professional values. I am dedicated to ensuring that the RCDSO's decisions reflect a deep understanding of both current and emerging patient needs, thereby enhancing safety and care quality. By serving on the council, I aim to support a framework that ensures the public receives the highest standard of care while adapting to changes in the healthcare environment.

I approach this role with a focus on transparency, integrity, and accountability. My goal is to contribute to a regulatory environment that prioritizes the well-being of the public, supports evidence-based practices, and ensures that the college's actions remain firmly aligned with its duty to protect public health.

In essence, my interest in joining the council is driven by a desire to apply my clinical insights to the broader governance of dental care, ensuring that regulatory oversight effectively serves and protects the interests of the public. I am committed to working collaboratively to uphold these standards and address emerging issues with a forward-thinking approach.
